CIGAR INSIDER SPECIAL REPORT: 2011 YEAR IN REVIEW

BY GREGORY MOTTOLA

This was an interesting year for cigar smokers, with plenty of high quality, high-scoring smokes rated by Cigar Insider. Some hail from iconic brands, while others come from smaller producers. The selection was diverse and the scores were strong. Although there weren't nearly as many high scoring smokes as in 2010, the year 2011 had plenty to offer a cigar aficionado in terms of quality and dynamic tobacco.

Over the last twelve months, the Cigar Insider tasting panel rated 251 cigars, and gave 48 of those smokes our label “Humidor Selection.” This accolade is given to cigars that score 91 points or more, smokes that you should seriously consider buying and aging in your humidor, in hopes they will improve and mature into even greater cigars over time. Although the year’s showing was impressive, there were fewer Humidor Selections in 2011 than in 2010, which saw 60, or even 2009, when there were 54.

While no cigar earned our “classic” rating of 95 points this year, three cigars scored 94 points, our best score of the year. The Aging Room Small Batch M356 Presto, a small robusto made at Jochi Blanco’s Tabacalera La Palma factory in the Dominican Republic, scored 94. It tied with Cuba’s Cohiba 1966 Edición Limitada 2011 and the La Reloba Selección Sumatra Torpedo made at My Father Cigars S.A. in Nicaragua. All three hailed from different countries and although stylistically different, all had remarkably unique flavor, near-perfect construction and the quality of tobacco that exemplifies the art and craft of cigar manufacturing. The Aging Room Small Batch is made from only Dominican Tobacco. The Cohiba, like all Cuban cigars, is made entirely from Cuban tobacco and was a limited-edition cigar created to commemorate the 45th anniversary of the brand. The La Reloba is a blend of Nicaraguan and Ecuadoran tobacco and at $6.50 per cigar it is quite a bargain for such a high-scoring smoke.

Five cigars scored 93 points: the Diamond Crown Julius Caesar Pyramid from the Dominican Republic, Illusione Epernay Le Taureau from Honduras, the Padrón Serie 1926 No. 9 Maduro from Nicaragua, and the H. Upmann Royal Robusto and Partagás Serie E No. 2 from Cuba. There was a steep drop from the 13 cigars that scored 93 last year.

In this issue we like to take a closer look at the brands we’ve rated over the year, and one of the ways we do that is by analyzing the average score by brand (see table, page two). At the top of the list is H. Upmann from Cuba. This was not a vertical tasting of the entire line, but rather was a sample of two cigars that averaged 92.5 points, outstanding on our 100-point scale. One was the H. Upmann No. 2, part of the Habanos S.A. regular-production portfolio, the other the H. Upmann Royal Robusto, a special cigar made this year exclusively for sale at the La Casa del Habano franchise.

The next highest scoring brand average (discounting those brands where only one cigar was rated) also came from Cuba: Partagás. The line averaged 91.8 points with a tasting that included a pair of new cigars, the new Serie E No. 2 and Serie D No. 5, as well as the Serie P No. 1 and the Salomon. Only a fraction of a point behind was a new trio of box-pressed Illusione Epernay cigars released this year. They averaged 91.7 points. Always a high achiever, the Padrón Serie 1926 Maduro line averaged 91.0 points across a vertical of six cigars, none of which scored below 90 points. It tied with the Cuban Ramon Allones, which also scored 91.0.

This was another stellar year for Cuba. We rated a total of 32 Cuban cigars in 2011, and they scored an average of 90.5 points. Twelve of the 14 different Cuban cigar brands that we rated averaged 90 points or higher: H. Upmann, Montecristo, Partagás, Cuaba, Hoyo de Monterrey, Punch, Ramon Allones, Cohiba, Romeo y Julieta, La Flor de Cano, Saint Luis Rey and Trinidad. The lowest scoring Cuban brand was La Gloria Cubana, but that still managed an average of 87.5 points.

Recent vintage Cuban cigars are of exceptional quality. An amazing 81.3 percent of the Havana smokes we rated in 2011 scored 90 points or higher. The next closest was Honduras, which saw almost half (44.8 percent) of its cigars rated 90 points or higher and had an average score of 89. Cigars made in the United [\[CONTINUED ON PAGE 6\]](#)

States followed with 88.8, then Nicaragua with 88.7 and the Dominican Republic with 87.6.

Ranked by size, no vitola averaged 90 points, but a few came close. Figurados averaged 89.5 while panetelas and odd sizes (shapes that don't conform to our particular size categories) averaged 89.4 and 89.3 points, respectively. Robustos averaged 89 points. Churchills, double coronas and petit coronas tied, all averaging 88.8 points, followed by corona gordas and lonsdales. Coronas ranked last, averaging 88.1 points.

As is often the case, the rise in quality comes at a price, namely that there are fewer bargains among the coterie of exceptional smokes. We named only eight Best Buys in 2011—cigars that retail for $5 or less, with scores of 87 points or higher.

The top achiever of the Best Buy category scored 90 points and is made in the Dominican Republic. The Swag Quickie is a Dominican puro with big flavor that retails for only $4.70 per cigar. When brand owner Alan Rubin released the Alec Bradley American Classic, he intended it to be a bargain cigar of premium quality. Four cigars from line made our list: The Robusto, Torpedo, Churchill and Toro—quite impressive. The La Reloba Selección Sumatra Corona from My Father Cigars and the Don Diego Fuerte By Omar Ortez Corona rounded out the list.

So while there are fewer bargains, your odds of finding a great smoke are quite high, as almost 50 cigars—all of varying taste profiles and for varying budgets—exhibited very high quality this year. And while it isn't likely that every Humidor Selection listed in Cigar Insider will be stocked by every tobacconist, you are bound to find at least one great smoke at your local cigar store. ■

MIAMI-MADE OLIVA SERIE V

BY DAVID SAVONA

Oliva Cigar Co. is working on a Miami-made Oliva Serie V. The company just moved into a new Miami facility and next month it will begin making preparations to roll cigars.

“We moved in about a month ago. We will begin setting up the rolling room in January,” said José Oliva, president of the company.

Before this project Oliva was making all of its cigars in Nicaragua. The Serie V line is its premiere product, rolled by only 22 workers, who are paid a salary, not by the cigar, as are other factory workers. “Serie V remains special because of the attention to detail and the limited number of cigars made each year,” said Oliva. An Oliva Serie V has made Cigar Aficionado's Top 25 list for four years in a row, from 2007 to 2010, the most current list published.

The Miami Serie V will have some nice touches making it different from the Nicaragua version. The company will list production totals, who made the smoke, how long it was aged, as well as other details.

Look for more information in an upcoming Cigar Insider. ■

LONGEST ASH CONTEST

BY ANDREW NAGY

The next time you're smoking an H. Upmann cigar, be wary of how you ash—you could end up within the pages of your favorite cigar magazine.

H. Upmann and Cigar Aficionado have teamed up to create a contest where a photograph of your long, unbroken ash could land you two tickets to your choice of either the New York or Las Vegas Big Smokes.

In addition, the winner will be featured in an advertisement that runs in Cigar Aficionado magazine, plus receive a box of H. Upmann cigars and a one-year subscription to the magazine.

Retailers all over the country are participating by hosting events in which attendees receive an H. Upmann 1844 Reserve cigar, t-shirts, paper rulers to measure the ash and a special golf tool.

To find a participating retailer, visit <http://longestashcontest.cigaraficionado.com> or follow on Twitter @LongestAsh. ■
